Gentlemen:

Under separate cover, I am sending you a copper medal or token, which I found a long time ago. I have hesitated to throw it away lest it be of some interest or value to some collection.

Will you kindly let me know if it has any value?

Very truly yours

M. McLane

Dear Madam:

In response to your letter of July 20th, the coin you have sent us is a token of the French Revolution of 1790-1792. They were issued by Monneron Frères. You can see the inscription at the top of your specimen reads. PACTE FEDERATIF. The condition of your piece is against its having any considerable value, even if the issue were a rare one.

If you care to call at our library when you are in New York some time, I can give you further information about the piece which, despite its not having intrinsic value, has considerable historical interest.

Very truly yours,

Secretary
